TREK 10 TRAILS

Marshall Hampton Reserve 2025-6

The 1,100+ acre property was acquired by the Southwest Florida Water Management District in 2008. Polk County entered into an agreement with the Water Management District in 2010 to oversee the management of the property. The acquisition of this property also protected a significant amount of shoreline and floodplain swamp on the edge of Lake Hancock. Lake Hancock is often referred to as the headwaters of the Peace River.

FIND THE CACHE WITHOUT GPS:

From the parking coords, follow the driveway signs to the parking area. Enter at the Panther Point Trail gate & head towards the large signboard. From the signboard, follow the marked hiking trail. You'll pass a SWFWMD monitoring station on the right. When you come to the fork in the trail, stay to the right, following the Osprey Loop Trail. If using a GPS, at .4 mile along the trail you'll pass the Peanut Border Cache, a quick find. Stay on the trail till you spot a rustic bench on the lake shore. TRAIL OPTIONS

Nestled on the northeast edge of Lake Hancock, across from Circle B Bar Reserve, the Reserve has an interesting blend of oak hammock areas canopied over mesic flatwoods, hardwood forest wetlands and a 60-acre pond. The site is dominated by live oaks, slash pine, sweet gum and palmettos. All trails start on the western edge of the parking area, and lead visitors through the equestrian parking area to the main trail head. Once past the main trail head, the trail quickly allows visitors to escape the open pasture and enter a small oak hammock. The trail then shortly exits the oak hammock and visitors can view the pond. Just a short distance to the west is where the trail splits, giving visitors two trail options. The two loop trails provide very different views of the property.
